

LINE COOK

Essence Statement

As Harry S. Truman said, "If you can't take the heat, get out of the kitchen." Assume the role of a fledgling restaurant employee thrust into the high paced world of the Line Cook. Demanding bosses, finicky customers and strict deadlines all stand in your way as you work towards your goal of total restaurant domination.

Game Overview

Line Cook takes the player through three separate game play sections: Prepping, Cooking and Upgrading. After finishing all three sections the player will have completed one game cycle or 'shift'. Here we will go into more detail into the game play a shift entails and the specifics involved with Prepping, Cooking and Upgrading.

Prepping challenges the player to complete a series of mini-games as quickly as possible. With each successful mini-game completed the player is rewarded with ingredients that can be used during cooking. This section is timed and the player must prep as many ingredients as possible before time runs out.

During Cooking the player must drag required ingredients onto targets to complete orders. Individual orders are time so the player must work fast to keep all the customers happy. Each successfully completed order will reward the player with money to spend during the upgrade phase of the game.

Once the player has successfully completed the Cooking phase they will be sent on break. Here the player can purchase training manuals to upgrade their skills. Skill upgrades include increased prep time, higher prep yield and improved wages. After earning a certain amount of money the player will be offered to purchase a stake in the restaurant and from here on out they will be able to use their money to buy interest in restaurants from around town. If the player is short on funds they can visit the in-game store to purchase currency to spend on upgrades and new restaurants. When the player is satisfied with how they have spent their money the whole cycle starts over.
